

CANADIAN PILOTS SMASH RAIDERS

Domination German Power Master Over German Pilots in Fight For London

Canadian pilots fighting with the R.A.F. have helped to send London free from attack at times during the last few days. Between them and the Hurricane squadrons—the original "All Canadian" squadron of the R.A.F. formed in England, and the squadron of the Royal Canadian Air Force formed in Canada—have already destroyed more than 100 German bombers.

The air battle for the factories, docks and railways of the Greater London area began on Sept. 7, when German bombers 300 Londoners and fighters into one of the fiercest air battles of the war. For 90 minutes the fight raged, from the south of Dover to the Thames Estuary, and back again. The "All Canadian" chased a large number of German bombers to the coast, shooting down four Dorniers 216, six Messerschmitt 110 fighter bombers and two single motor fighters on the way.

Two days later, when the R.C.A.F. squadron's pilots were shooting down three more bombers and fighters were involved in two more against London and southeast England. This was the second day when 180 of the enemy were officially claimed as destroyed. Both the Canadian squadrons played their part in two big engagements with the enemy.

Three days later, on Sept. 16, the "All Canadian" helped to give a German bomber force the largest loss of any which have tried to reach London. Together with other Hurricane and Spitfire pilots, they met them just out over the Estuary. The enemy were in two large formations at 17,000 feet. The Canadians led the attack. They dived on the leading group of attacking bombers, which at the start were in close formation, split them up, and shot down 14 of them—nine Dorniers 17 and five Heinkels 80.

U.S. Winter Weather

The winter outlook for the United States looks to be in two years, and nearly half the wheat plant has already been sown. The Indian summer of October with rather persistent dry weather gave the plant a good deep root from the bottom. Both the early and the late sowing of wheat have been good, which offers late a serious loss from the fields.
